Hand Shapes. However, there is not only one system used to categorize the hand shapes. Another method used assigns each hand shape the characteristics of a natural element: earth, air, fire, water, wood and metal. In Western palmistry, the four element classification is the most common: earth, air, water and fire.

That's right; the lines on you palms aren't the only hand features that can be used to determine your personality and temperament. The shape of your palm and the length of your fingers say a lot too! There's evidence to support this as well. To make this concept easier to grasp, palmists have broken hand shapes into four types. Each type is linked to an element.
