This is the only Conan the Barbarian Atlantean Sword™ recreated under the direction of the late Jody Samson and from the original studio molds. This sword features a deeply hand-hollowground, hand-finished blade. The blades are exact reproductions with one difference -- instead of being made of 440 stainless steel like the prop swords, they are made of durable high carbon steel and heat ...

A claymore (/ ˈ k l eɪ m ɔːr /; from Scottish Gaelic: claidheamh-mòr, "great sword") is either the Scottish variant of the late medieval two-handed sword or the Scottish variant of the basket-hilted sword. The former is characterised as having a cross hilt of forward-sloping quillons with quatrefoil terminations and was in use from the 15th to 17th centuries.

The knightly sword develops in the 11th century from the Viking Age sword. The most evident morphological development is the appearance of the crossguard. The transitional swords of the 11th century are also known as Norman swords. Already in the 10th century, some of the "finest and most elegant" of the Ulfberht type of "Viking" (actually Carolingian/Frankish) swords began to exhibit a more ...
